And as concernynge the nobles and ryall states of this realme it nedeth not to expresse by name.

Wyll certifye you of our newes in the parties of Calays. first the .xxj. day of October whiche was fryday in the moornyng at .v. of the clocke the kynges grace toke his Shyppe called the Swallowe/and so came to Calays by .x. of the clocke. And there he was receyued with processyon/and with the mayre & the lorde debute and all the speres and the sowdyours in aray with a great peale of gonnes/and laye in Caleys tyll the sonday seuennyght after. And on the .xxvj. day of October my lorde of Norffolke accompanyed with my lorde of Darby & a great nombze of gentylmen besydes mette with the great mayster of Fraunce vj. myles fro Calays at y englysshe pale/the said great mayster hauynge tWo greate lordes in his company of theyr ordze/and a hondred gentylmen attendynge vpon them. And there my lorde of Norffolke and the greate mayster deuyfed the place where the tWo kynges shold mete/whiche was at Sandynghelde. And that so done they wente bothe to Calays with theyr cōpanyes. And the sayd greate mayster with dyuerse other straungers dyned that day with y kyng. And after dyner my lorde of Norffolke brought them forth of theyr way a myle or tWo/and so departed for that tyme. And on the monday the .xxj. daye of October/the kyng of Englande toke his waye to mete with the frensshe kyng at the place befoze appoynted/with .viij. score all in beluet cotes afoze hym lordes and knyghtes / and .xl. of his garde/and other to the nōbre (as we thynke) of .vj. hondred hoxses / and as well hoxsed as euer was seen. And y kyng our mayster mette with the frensshe kyng at Sandynghelde within the englysshe pale thze myles. There the frensshe kyng taryed for our mayster the space of an houre or two / the frensshe kyng beynge accompanied with the kyng of Flauerne / the cardinal of Lozeyn / the duke of Vendome with dyuerse other noble men / well & ryche appoynted beynge of lyke nobre as our kyng was of / that is to saye vi. hondred persones. There was the louyngest metyng that euer was seen / for the one embraced y other. v. or. vi. tymes on horsbacke / & so dyd the lordes on eyther party eche to other / & so dyd ryde hande in hande w greute loue the space of a myle. At y metyng of these two noble kynges there were sacres & sacrettes cast of / & at dyuerse flyghtes two kytes were beten downe / whiche were sooryng in y ayre / w suche lyke pastyme / whiche greatly pleased al the nobles on bothe partyes. And than they dyd lyght of theyr horsles & dranke eche to other / the frensshe kyng dranke fyrst to our kyng / & whan they had dronke / they embraced eche other agayn w great loue / & so rode towar des Bulleyn / our kyng on the ryght haude. And whan they came within a myle of Bulleyn / there mette with y kynges the Dolphyn / beynge accōpanied with his two bretherne the duke of Olypauce & y duke of Angoulesme very goodly chyldren / and attendynge vpon them foure cardynalles w a. viij. horsles / very well beseen. And whā they came nere the towne / the frensshe kyng caused our mayster to tary whyles the gonshot was shotte / whiche was herd fro Bulleyn. xx. englysshe myles of. And so entered the towne / where stode y capteyn w the sowdyours in good ordre / & aboue them stode a hondred swytsheners of the frensshe kynges garde in theyr dublettes & theyr hosen of yelow beluet cutte / goodly plones / and aboue them stode. CC. of y frensshe kynges garde more / scottes & frensshemmen in cotes of yelow / blew & crymsyn beluet.

berynge halberdes in theyr handes / & aboute them stode CC. gentylmen / beyng in theyr gownes well & ryche beseen / euery man hauyng a batayle axe in theyr hādes & theyr captaynes standing by them. And so they tarped in Bulleyn mondaye / tuesdaye / Wednesday / & thursday all daye. The tuesday beyng the secunde day of his there beyng the frenssh kyng gaue our kyng ryche apparayle wrought with nedle werke pyzled w golde / in the whiche lyke apparayle bothe the kynges went to our lady chyrche in Bulleyn. And at that tyme our kyng optayned release and lyberte of the frenssh kyng for all prysoners / at that tyme beyng prisoners in Bulleyn. And in lykewyse dyd the frenssh kyng in Caley of our kyng & mayster at his there beyng / and optayned grace for all banysshed men whiche wold make sute for theyr pardon. And to esteime the ryche traueses the were in Bulleyn in our lady chyrche and in Caley in our lady chyrche in lykewyse for bothe the kynges / the ryche ordynaūces and prouysyon for the same / it is to moche for to wyte. And as for the greate chere that was there / no man can expresse it. For the kynges grace was there enterteyned all at the frenssh kynges costes & charges. And euery daye noble men of fraunce desyred our nobles & gentylmen home to theyr lodgynges / where as they founde theyr houses ryche hanged / greate cupbordes of plate / sumptuous fare with syngyng and playenge of all kyndes of musyke.
And also there was sent vnto our lodgynges great fare with all maner of wynges for our seruauntes / and our housmeete payde for / and all at theyr charges. And euery daye the frenssh kyng had at dyner & souper with hym certayne noble men of Englande. And the kynges grace had in lykewyse certayne of theyr nobles at dyner and couper/ durynge the tyme of theyr beyng at Bulleyn.

And this contynued with as greute chere & familiarite as myght be. And as concernynge ladyes & gentyl women there was none. And on fryday folowynge the kynges came towarde Caleys. And the dolphyn with the cardynalles & all theyr gentylmen brought the kynges vnto the place where they fyrst mette/ & than departed.
The frensche kyng had great caryage/ for there came more than. CCC. mules laden with stuffe. And so commyng towarde Caleys the duke of Rychemonde accom-panyed with bishops and many other noble men that were not with the kyng at Bulleyn/ & all the kynges garde whiche were with all other meruayllously well horsted & trynde/ they stode in a place appoynted in aray & good order in the way two myle out of Caleys where the frensche kyng sholde come/ who saluted y frensche kyng with great honour/ in lyke maner as the kyng our mayster was saluted at Bulleyn/ with amynable & moost goodly salutacions as euer was seen/ they were saluted w greut melody/ what w gonnes & all other instrumentes/ & the ordre of the towne/ it was a heuynly syght for y tyme. First at Newnam byrde. iiii. C. shot/at y blockhous. xl. shot/ at Richebake tour. iij. C. shot/ w in the towne of Caleys. ii. M. shot great & small/ besydes y shyppes/ it was all nobred. iij. M. shot. And at Bulleyn by estimacyon it past not. CC. shot/ but they were great peres. Also for y ordre of the towne there was set all sernyng men on y one syde in talwyn cotes/ & lowdours on y other syde/ all in cotes of reed & blew w halberdes in theyr hādes. And so y kēges came rydyng in y myddes And so y frensche kyng went to staple hall/ whiche is a pryncely hous/ & vpon saterday bothe y kynges rode to our lady chirche to masse. And at after onne bothe they couſeyles ſate togider. And vpon ſonday bothe þ kynges herd maſſe in theyr lodgēges. And at after noone þ kyng of England rode to ſtaple hall to þ frenſſhe kyng / & there was bothe bere baytyng & bulbaytyng tyl nyght. And at nyght the frenſſh kyng ſouped w our kyng / & there was great bankettyng. And after ſoup there came in a maſke my lady marques of Denbroke / my lady Mary / my lady Darby / my lady Fitzwater / my lady Rocheford / my lady Liſley / & my lady Wallop / gorgeyouſly apparayled w byſers on theyr faces / & ſo came & toke þ frenſſhe kyng by þ hande & other lordes of fraunce / & daūced a daūce oꝝ two.

And after that the kyng toke of theyr viſers / & than they daūced w gentylmen of fraunce an houre a ter. And than they departed to theyr lodgynges. And as for the apparayle of the frenſſhe lordes my tongue can not expreſſe it and in eſpecyall þ frenſſhe kynges apparayle paſſeth my penne to wyte / for he had a dublet ouer ſet all w ſtones & ryche diamondes / Whiche was valued by diſcrete men at a. C. M. lxx. They paſſed ferre our lordes & knyghtes in apparayle & rycheſſe. They had great chere in Caleys & louynge alſo / & all at our kynges coſtes & charges. Alſo the ſame day þ the kynges came frō Bulleyn / þ frenſſhe kyng made þ duke of Norſſolke & the duke of Suffolke of the oꝝdꝝe of ſaynt Myghell. And vpon monday whiche was the .xxix. day of October at Caleys our kyng made the great mayſter of fraunce & the admyꝝall of fraunce knyghtes of the garter. And that day there was a great waſtelynge bytweene englyſſhmen & frenſſhmen befoꝝe bothe þ kynges / the frenſſhe kyng had none but pꝛeſtes that waſteld / whiche were byggꝝ men & ſtrong / they were byetherne / but they had moost ſalles. And as coꝝer nynges þ haboundaunt & lyberal multytude of gyftes that were so louyngly and cordyally gyuen on bothe partyes (to the greate honour of bothe the kynges) my penne or capacit can not expresse it / as well amonge the greate lordes as vnto the lowest yemen that bare any offyce in eyther kynges hous / and specially the kynges gyftes on bothe partyes alway rewarded the one lyke vnto þ other And all other gyftes was nothyng but ryche plate / gol de coyne / and syluer was of no estymacyon / besyde rap mentes / horses / geldynges / sawcons / beres / dogges for the game / With many other / Whiche were to moche to wryte. And vpon the .xxix. daye of October the frenshe kyng departed fro Caley to Marys Ward / & our kyng brought hym as ferre as Morgyson / Whiche is fro Cal leys .viij. myle / and so came to Caley agayne. And he purposeth (god wylling) to be at Caunterbury the .viij. daye of Nouember / and so home / Whome god of his goodnes euer preserue and sende good passage and safe agayne in to Englande. Amen.

¶ God saue the kyng.
